DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent Number 5,685,581 to Kritzler et al.

Krtizler et al. disclose an outside door handle (2) for vehicles having a pivoting portion (6) integrally formed at an end of the door handle, pivotally inserted into a door handle rotating space (figure 1) formed at one end of a handle base and functions as a rotating center (rotates about axis A) of the door handle, and a guide portion (14) formed at an opposite end of the door handle and inserted into a handle operating space (figure 1) formed at an opposite end of the handle base, wherein the pivoting portion is formed with a stopper (11) which protrudes toward the handle base in a vertical direction in relation to a rotating surface of the door handle, and the handle rotating space is formed with a stopper groove (13) into which the stopper is inserted, as in claim 1.

Krtizler et al. also disclose the stopper groove having a radial direction restricting portion (figures 6 and 7) for restricting movement of the stopper to a rotating direction of the door handle, and a circumferential direction restricting portion (figures 6 and 7) for restricting movement of the stopper to a rotating direction of the door handle, as in claim 2, wherein two stoppers (figure 6) are disposed, each at an upper surface and a bottom surface of the pivoting portion (the stopper extends the entire width of the pivoting portion, from the upper surface to the bottom surface), as in claim 3.

Kritzler et al. further disclose a break-prevention structure of an outside door handle for vehicles, the structure comprising a handle base (1) having a door handle rotating space (left side of figure 1) at one end and a handle operating space (right side of figure 1) at an opposite end, a door handle (2) having a pivoting portion (6) integrally formed at one end and a guide portion (14) formed at an opposite end, wherein the pivoting portion is configured and dimensioned as a rotating center (rotates about axis A) of the door handle when pivotally inserted into the handle rotating space, as in claim 4.

Kritzler et al. additionally disclose the pivoting portion is formed with a stopper (11) that protrudes toward the handle base in a vertical direction in relation to a rotating surface of the door handle, and the handle rotating space being formed with a stopper groove (13) into which the stopper is inserted, as in claim 5, wherein the stopper groove comprises a radial direction restricting portion (figure 6 and 7) for restricting movement of the stopper to a rotating direction of the door handle and a circumferential direction restricting portion (figure 6 and 7) for restricting movement of the stopper to a rotating direction of the door handle, as in claim 6, as well as two stoppers are disposed (figure 6), each at an upper surface and a bottom surface of the pivoting portion (the stopper extends the entire width of the pivoting portion, from the upper surface to the bottom surface), as in claim 7.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed February 2, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Regarding the argument, in page 5, lines 9-22 of the remarks, that the pivot fork of Kritzler et al. does not function as the rotating center of the door handle, the examiner respectfully disagrees. Kritzler et al. disclose the pivot fork of the handle is formed with a mouth or seat that engages over the pivot pin (5) so that the handle can pivot about the axis (A), (column 2, lines 65-67), thusly, Kritzler discloses that the pivoting portion functioning as a rotating center of the door handle.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
